

The General Ledger Company will now be known as:

InsightSoftware.com

Our flagship product, Inquiry Suite, is now called Insight®.

Why the change?

InsightSoftware.com designs real-time productivity tools that bring visibility to information residing in your Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system. Although our product began with a focus on General Ledger (GL) applications, we now provide a wide-ranging set of solutions to optimize business processes throughout your organization. This means you have better insight to information in your: Financial, Human Capital Management, Supply Chain Management, Project Management and Information Management applications to manage your business more effectively. We will continue to expand our product solutions, optimizing other strategic application areas. Thus, it is time to reflect the comprehensive nature of our solutions in both our company and product names. We will officially launch our new branding on July 1, 2009, unveiling our new website InsightSoftware.com. Our new logo succinctly sums up who we are, what we provide and how to contact us:

Why change the name of the company?

Our first software solution brought insight to information locked in JD Edwards' General Ledger module, helping accountants with their financial reporting needs and streamlining the month end close process. Today, we have over 23 modules for JD Edwards and 10 modules for Oracle E-Business Suite. We continually expand not only the breadth of our offerings but the functional depth of our solutions as well. With the release of Version 10 in 2010, you will be able to use Insight® over other database files as well, including custom files and third party products. Given our vast array of product offerings and our vision for the future, the name change is timely, if not overdue. InsightSoftware.com sums up what our solutions do best - Insight® transforms the way you work with your ERP system, bringing visibility to information thereby optimizing your business processes.

How will I correspond with InsightSoftware.com?

Our website is the same as our company name, InsightSoftware.com. Email addresses will all end with @InsightSoftware.com including: support@InsightSoftware.com, sales@InsightSoftware.com and marketing@InsightSoftware.com. Our new nomenclature for employee email addresses will be first.last@InsightSoftware.com. However, if you forget, our old email addresses will forward for the first few months.

What does this mean for our customers?

Our relationship with you remains the same. Our name change will not affect any of your current contracts. As of July 1, 2009, all new contracts and addendums will be with InsightSoftware.com. Please update your systems with the name change. In addition, the manner in which you log cases with Customer Support is the same. Our address and phone numbers remain unchanged. However, we will have a new website and email address protocol, see above. In summary, the biggest change you will see is in our marketing efforts, like our new website that proactively supplies information on our solution offerings, complimentary webinars, training sessions and other news and events. We are honoured to provide you with a product set which optimizes your ERP business processes and look forward to expanding our relationship with you in the future.
